Statement on Continuing Medical Education Advertising

In light of recent advertising practices used by some sponsors of continuing medical education activities, the Texas State Board of Medical Examiners issues the following statement regarding proper advertising in this area:

Advertising for continuing medical education (CME) activities should in no way imply endorsement by the Texas State Board of Medical Examiners. Advertisers should not use wording that would mislead the public or physician population into believing that the CME activity is sponsored or approved by the Texas State Board of Medical Examiners. The following is wording that is used by the Texas Medical Association and is an example of acceptable advertising, particularly for ethics/professional responsibility courses: "This course has been designated by the Texas Medical Association for one hour of education in medical ethics and/or professional responsibility."
